1 in 5 people. Zero apps built for them.

Finiverse is the first personal finance app designed for neurodivergent minds, the users every other app loses to overwhelm, anxiety, and a UI that wasn't made for them.

THE OPPORTUNITY

1 in 7

People are neurodivergent

ADHD, autism, dyslexia, dyscalculia & more

Large

Underserved personal finance market

Growing demand for inclusive financial tools

No one

Has built specifically for this audience

An open category, early to define it

THE PROBLEM

Finance apps were built for one type of brain.

Neurotypical brains. Everyone else gets overwhelmed, avoids the app, and gives up. Not because they're bad with money, because the app wasn't designed for them.

ADHD

Impulsive spending, time blindness, and dopamine-driven purchases make every standard budget app feel like a trap.

Financial Anxiety

Checking a bank account triggers dread. Dashboards with red numbers cause panic. Most users avoid apps that make them feel worse.

Dyscalculia

Numbers don't stick. Percentages cause panic. Spreadsheet-style interfaces are actively harmful for people who process numbers differently.

THE SOLUTION

Finiverse is built different. By design.

Every other finance app	◆ Finiverse
Generic categories, built for spreadsheet thinkers	Emotion-tagged transactions, mood tracks with money
Overwhelming dashboards with alerts that trigger anxiety	Calm, minimal UI designed to reduce financial stress
Willpower-based budgeting that punishes impulsive spending	Wishlist with wait periods, breaks the dopamine-buy loop
Generic AI chatbot with no personal context	Sam AI, knows your full financial + emotional history (Claude-powered)
Motivation through guilt and comparison	XP, levels, missions, gamification that rewards consistency

WHY WE WIN

Three moats competitors can't easily copy.

Being first matters. But being first with a data advantage and a category lock-in matters more.

01

A wedge into a much bigger market

No major player owns "personal finance for neurodivergent users," the segment every generic app underserves. Finiverse wins that beachhead first, then expands the same product to the much larger general personal finance market, where emotion-aware tracking is a differentiator for everyone, not just our first users.

02

Emotional data no other app collects

Every Finiverse user builds a personal record linking mood, energy, and stress to their spending. As this data grows, it becomes a unique foundation for smarter, more personalized insights.

03

Sam AI with deep personal context

Sam is powered by Claude (Anthropic) and knows every record, emotion, goal, and pattern for each user. Personalization at this depth is a switching cost, not a chatbot.

BUSINESS MODEL

Simple. Proven. Apple does the billing.

"I used to think I was just bad with money. Therapy helped me understand my emotions were driving every financial decision I made, and that my brain works differently, not worse. I built Finiverse because everyone deserves a tool that actually works for them."

Lives with ADHD & anxiety, builds Finiverse from lived experience, not just research.

SEED STAGE · OPEN TO CONVERSATIONS

Let's build this together.

We're looking for investors who believe great products deserve to work for every mind, not just some of them.
